A First: Holton Meets The Inter-Collegiate Press

Forty students from 21 colleges were present at an inter-collegiate press conference held by Governor Lynwood Holton under the auspices of the University of Richmond's department of journalism. Holton's purpose in holding this meeting was to keep open the lines of communication between college students and his administration. This press conference was a first of its kind in Virginia for a Virginia governor has never held a news meeting solely for the purpose of meeting with college journalists.

Topics of discussion were typical of the interests of college students. Rules and the rule making process were of particular interest. The Governor declared that rules should not include vague provisions and that an essential ingredient in rules is clarity and clearness. In the making of rules, students should be given a voice—but not full power. Holton did agree, however, that the constitutional rights of a citizen should not be infringed upon on the campus. But, he insisted that he is not ready to give the full power of rule making to students.

Regarding the Board of Visitors, Gov. Holton said that he might again appoint another student to a board as he had already appointed J. Harvey Wilkerson III to the Board of Visitors of the University of Virginia. (Wilkerson will be returning to continue his law study after his unsuccessful attempt in seeking election to the House of Representatives.) However, he states that he has never made any commitment to keep students on any Board of Visitors. The governor encourages board members to meet informally with students to keep open the lines of communication between students and administration. The Governor further expressed that he would not readily consider appointing even non-voting student members to such a board.

Debate Team At Invitational

Madison's first appearance at the Emory University invitational debate tournament recently highlighted two weeks of activity which saw the college's teams in action at Wake Forest and on campus where the state junior varsity regional was held last week.

Warren Bowling and Garland Dennett compiled a winning record in the Emory event and climaxed their appearance with a victory over Army. As a result of their showing, Forensics Director Lawrence Woodard expects invitations from the University of Redlands, the University of Southern California, and U.C.L.A., California's three most prestigious invitations.

Donna Will, David Bottenfield, Jane Reiser, and Bob Makofsky all scored victories at the Wake Forest Novice meet. Miss Will and Bottenfield also compiled a winning record in the JV tournament. Continued improvement by these two may well result in an invitation to the National novice competition next spring, according to Woodard.

New Orleans Symphonic to Appear at Madison For Second Performance

The New Orleans Philharmonic-Symphony Orchestra will mark its 35th year with the largest number of concerts in the organization's history as they offer 130 performances in 30 cities this season.

The symphony, under the baton of Mr. Werner Torkanowsky, will appear in Wilson Auditorium at 8 p.m. next Thursday under the sponsorship of the Artists and Lectures Series. It will be the second appearance of the group here.

The New Orleans Orchestra has appeared in nearly every major city in the United States and in 21 countries in South America, Latin America, the West Indies, and Mexico. The 82 members of the group

The Stratford Players' presentation of Dark of the Moon will be performed again this evening and tomorrow evening under the direction of Mr. Gerald Haskins of the Speech and Drama department.

For those who have not yet had the opportunity to see the play, here is a brief synopsis of the plot. It is concerned with the trials and tribulations of a young couple who are trying to live a normal life, but who are unable to do so because the community will not accept the boy who was formerly a witch.

Though written at the time of World War I, the play is very contemporary in that it tends to satirize religion in presenting a community of people who are professed Christians, but who are unwilling to accept an individual because he is different.

Don Enoughty and Margot

Knight, two freshmen, play John, the witch boy, and Barbara Allen who marries him. Sam Heatwole plays the bigoted Preacher Haggler who leads the condemnation of the couple.

Rounding out the cast are Bob Toven as Smelius, Bob Raab as Marvin Hudgens, and Jeanne Impellitteri and Becky Elliot as the Dark Witch and Fair Witches respectively.

Director Haskins, a new member of the faculty, was responsible for TV direction of Edward Albee's Zoo Story and Samuel Beckett's Waiting for Godot at Indiana State University last year. He has also been involved in the technical direction of Romeo and Juliet.

He is currently working to develop a television and radio technology program at Madison. Early responses indicate that the program will be a popular one. If so, Madison will be the only school in the state to offer courses to students desiring a concentration in broadcasting.

Tickets for the remaining performances of the play are on sale at the box office in the Duke Fine Arts building which opens at 6:30 p.m. Tickets for students are priced at $1.00 and for all others $1.50.

All women interested in participating in women's intercollegiate basketball are requested to attend an organizational meeting in Keezell 6 next Monday at 7 p.m., Coach Betty Jaynes announced today.

A FRESHMAN, Margot Knight, stars in Stratford's first production.

VETERAN ACTOR, Sam Heatwole, leads the cast of Dark of the Moon. He plays the role of a bigoted minister, Preacher Haggler.

EDITORIAL COMMENTS

An Open Letter To Gov. Holton

Open Letter:

Thank you for your interest not only in the collegiate press but also for your concern about students and our problems. As a governor of Virginia, you were the first to attempt to keep open the lines of communication between college students and state officials. As a member of the student body of Madison College and the BREEZE staff, thank you.

The necessity of keeping open the lines of communication cannot be overly stressed. Not only is communication a necessary link between one group and another, but more important, it is a device pertinent to the solution of many problems. As you have said, students should be given a voice "...but not full right..." in the making of codes and regulations at their relative universities, but the question arises just how far can we go? Or rather, how do we go?

The Board of Visitors is closed to us. Our immediate problems are voiced to this mysterious group by well-meaning adults who often fail in their attempt to express our needs. We will not attempt to turn off or tune out adults for they are makers of our college environments (our rules); we merely want them to hear us, and yet not just hear, but listen.

Your suggestion of informal meetings between members of the Board of Visitors and students is wonderful. If the Board would become a more involved part of the college by lending a hearing ear to us as students, adults, voters, and citizens, a better system of communication would develop. By reading a documented report, factual knowledge can be gained but not human understanding. If student government presidents or other campus leaders could present ideas and facts to the Board from the viewpoint of the student body—without expecting even to be present during voting—better communications would begin. No one knows a problem better than that individual or group of individuals—in this instance a college community—than the individual himself or his representative. Both the Board and the students working together, listening and understanding each other could bring about a more active bond of communication. The informal meeting and student expression to the Board directly would be a positive step in the right direction.

Only blind individuals can say that communication between students and administration is complete. By eradicating this problem through encouraging Board members to listen and by allowing students to speak directly to the Board, a starting point is made. We, as students, are ready to listen as well as to express ourselves, and we want our needs heard so that they can be understood and so that we can feel a part of the organization.

By letting the world move on without any voice whatsoever in decision making, we feel like non-existing entities. Help us to reach out to others and, let us help to better any communication which now exists.

Sincerely
Linda Susan Grubbs

DeGaulle — Man of Controversy

DeGaulle

The death of ex-French premier Charles DeGaulle this week took from the world one of its most controversial figures—a man loved by some, hated by some, but respected by all.

With but a single purpose in mind, to restore France to her former status as a world power, the stately DeGaulle took over a badly-divided country and ruled it firmly until 1968 when student protests and crippling strikes forced him from office.

During his decade in power, relations between France and England, and France and the U.S. deteriorated alarmingly. His opposition to England kept that country of the European common market through the imposition of harsh requisites for British entry. He alienated the U.S. by withdrawing French forces from NATO and forcing NATO out of France altogether. His overtures to Russia alienated both the U.S. and England. But through it all, with an enormous amount of self-confidence, (some called it conceit), DeGaulle had faith that the path he was following was in the best interests of his country.

DeGaulle often remarked that it was sad when men remained in power beyond their time and declared that it would not happen to him. "I won't forget to die," he said. And he didn't.

Many interesting comments have surfaced relating to material printed in this column and other sections of the Breeze. Now, that's a good start toward some communications. Certainly, all comments were not in agreement with each other, but at least they have started to come.

Of particular note, also, is the fact that I personally have had talks with various individuals with whom I might not talk ordinarily. That in itself is good, because it is just one of the many avenues of communications that need to be opened and maintained. I guess I am one who learns things the hard way, but at least I am trying to learn.

* * * *

This past halloween, in Detroit as well as elsewhere around the country, children went trick-or-treating, most with the ultimate treats foremost in their minds. But in Detroit as elsewhere, sick minds were lurking behind the cloak of residential respectability, and these minds were bent on the destruction of those children.

Five-year-old Kevin Tostin was just one of the millions of youngsters who went forth in search of some goodies. Kevin got his, with one hitch: some of his candy was laced with heroin and quinine. Today Kevin is dead, as are countless of others who fell prey to similar acts of revulsion.

This type of activity is not limited to urban areas, either. Why, while talking with some elementary schoolers I know here in this sleepy burg, they informed me that some of their little playmates had received apples with the old, traditional razor blade implanted within to be bitten into by an unsuspecting mouth. Man, that's poor dental hygiene no matter how you look at it. But what's infinitely worse is that it is far worse mental hygiene.

That is as sick as those who feel the need to bomb establishment edifices just to show their displeasure with the way things are going. It indeed is unfortunate that this sickness permeates the beings of those who proclaim to be the reformers as well as those they proclaim to reform.

* * * *

Guess what? Remember last year about the time that the plight of the Madison "3" surfaced? If memory serves me right, students and others were encouraged to seek answers to the unresolved questions from official sources. Soon thereafter, many students and two professors were arrested when they held a vigil in an attempt to find out why these encouraged questions were not answered.

With this in mind, I recently have attempted to discover why a certain professor was not re-appointed to his position next year. I sent letters stating my intentions to the president, the provost, the division chairman, and the department head, all those in the official chain-of-command who would have had a part in the decision. That was almost two weeks ago. All four replies were to the effect that the information was confidential.

"Ho, Ho!" you say, "another revolution is being mounted." Not so, because those who know me — and that does not include the non-student, Mr. James, who has been gracing these pages with his contributions — know my methods generally confine themselves to the mental, rather than the physical, maneuvering. Those who are bent more toward the physical, however, could begin preparing yourselves should the opportunity present itself.

As a direct result of the recent elections, I seriously am considering investing in an entry-proof bomb shelter in which I can entomb myself. No, I am not afraid of possible nuclear involvement with any other world power. Rather, I am terrified thoroughly of the prospects of future elections if this one was any indication of the shape of things to come.

Goodell, Gore and others of like ilk fell at the political wayside, not because they were dangerous "radical-liberals," but mainly because they had the guts to challenge the status quo which daily devours those unable to fight back. They further incurred the wrath of the Nixon-Agnew complex, a dubious duo aiming at becoming as destructive as the military-industrial complex is rumored to be.

If the states are successful in their drive to prove the "Vote-18" provisions unconstitutional, it could strike a crushing blow to the nation's (Continued on Page 3)

Students,

I would like to express my honest opinion concerning the SGA at Madison College. Students say that SGA is (in reality) powerless and they are absolutely right. Article V of the SGA by-laws verifies this by stating that SGA recognizes that "final authority is vested in the President of the College." Students should realize this fact and that SGA must work within its structure in changing any social or academic policies. I believe SGA is trying to change many regulations at Madison but is restricted from doing so primarily because of the power structure. Perhaps too much emphasis is being placed on changing particular rules and regulations and not enough emphasis is being placed on changing the power structure as a whole in which the real authority lies.

Any college student should be considered a responsible individual and should have a "real" voice in campus affairs. At the present time the students at Madison do not possess any significant or responsible authority pertaining to any college matters whatsoever. The 1966 Statement on Government of Colleges and Universities emphasizes this by noting that "students do not in fact presently have a significant voice in the government of colleges and universities." (This statement was jointly formulated by the American Association of University Professors, the American Council on Education, and the Association of Governing Boards of Universities and Colleges.)

Not only does the student have the right to a "real" voice in his own school's government, but if he is not allowed to share the authority of decision making he is being cheated out of part of his education as well. I point to another quote from the same source mentioned above to support this statement. "Students as members of the academic community have a distinctive role which qualifies them to share in the exercise of responsible authority on campus; the exercise of that authority is part of their education." Do you think SGA has responsible authority in any area? I certainly don't.

Again, I feel it is important to change certain rules and regulations at Madison, but I think it is even more important for the students to be allowed to share in the authority of changing them. In order to initiate this I propose that a formal committee should be organized by SGA for the specific purpose of changing or establishing a new student government structure that would allow the student more power in sharing in the exercise of responsible authority at Madison College. I believe that this committee should be composed of both SGA members and interested students not in SGA.

The main functions of this committee would be 1) to gather and study information pertaining to student participation in college government, 2) to find out all proper channels and procedures that would be necessary to use in order to achieve this change and 3) to present a new structure that would allow shared authority between administration, faculty, and students.

I would certainly welcome all opinions, criticisms, remarks, or questions concerning this issue. Please notify myself or any other SGA representative and let your opinion be known. My P.O. Box No. is 1093 and I may also be reached by calling the off campus extension 433-1739. I would like to reemphasize that this is my personal opinion and does not necessarily represent SGA opinion as a whole.

Chamberlain Plays Hamlet

Hallmark Begins 20th Year on TV

The award-winning "Hallmark Hall of Fame" will open its 20th consecutive season on television next Tuesday, (9-11 p.m. NYT) with a new, two-hour production of Hamlet, starring Richard Chamberlain, on the NBC Television Network.

A Christmas season encore colorcast of the critically acclaimed original musical, The Littlest Angel, will be presented Sunday, Dec. 6 (7:30-9 p.m. NYT).

Chamberlain will share the spotlight with leading British performers in Hamlet. Sir Michael Redgrave also stars as Polonius, Margaret Leighton as Gertrude, Richard Johnson as Claudius and Sir John Gielgud as the ghost of Hamlet's father. Ophelia will be portrayed by Ciaran Madden, making her American television debut.

Hamlet was prepared in London and on location at England's historic Raby Castle. It's a Chamberlain-LeMaire production in association with Universal Television and Britain's ATV (Associated Television). George LeMaire is the producer and Peter Wood the director.

More than 30 million viewers tuned to the first colorcast of The Littlest Angel on NBC-TV last December, according to national audience measurements. Praise from critics included: "By the end of the 90-minute program there were those who had fallen under its hypnotic spell" (The New York Times); and "...an ideal family attraction" (the New York Daily News).

The Littlest Angel is based on Charles Tazewell's Christmas classic about a headstrong shepherd boy who is transformed into an angel. Fred Gwynne plays the Guardian Angel and Johnnie Whitaker stars in the title role. They are joined by six special guest stars: Cab Calloway as the angel Gabriel; E. G. Marshall as God; John McGiver as the Angel of Peace; Tony Randall as Democritus; George Rose as the Sycopomp, and Connie Stevens as the Flying Mistress.

Composer-lyricist Lan O'Kun wrote 11 songs for the special. He also prepared the television adaptation of the Tazewell story with Patricia Gray. Joe Layton was the director and choreographer. The Lester Osterman Production (with Osterman and O'Kun as executive producers) was produced by Burr Smidt.

Other plans for Hallmark Cards 20th television anniversary will be announced in the near future, a company official said today.

Seems to me that this country's revolution was based on taxation without representation; if so, I should have been at war with the U.S. for some time.

Civilisation Examines Gutenberg's Role; "Protest and Communication"

The outstanding Civilisation presented its sixth in a series of 13 programs last Wednesday evening and will repeat the same program Sunday.

This segment is entitled Protest and Communication and deals with period at the close of the 15th century when Gutenberg's printing press has become a major influence. Communication is accelerated through printing and the writings of Luther, Erasmus, and Montaigne are spread to a wide audience through this new medium. It covers also the breakdown of religious unity in France and Germany.

As medieval life gave way to doubts and fears of the individual in modern society, the viewer sees the works of Durer and Granach. Montaigne sought to escape the religious wars and mass sadism by retreating from the clamor. From his tower near Bordeaux, he wrote penetrating essays.

In this program, Sir Kenneth Clark also focuses on Shakespeare's dramatic genius. Excerpts from his plays are performed by the Royal Shakespeare company thus providing a link from the strife of Europe to the peace of Elizabethan England.

Next week, Lord Clark presents Grandeur and Obedience which takes the viewer to the Rome of the counter-reformation, the Rome Michelangelo and of Bernini. He declares that Papal Rome, the Rome of Sixtus V, is the most grandiose piece of town planning ever attempted.

He finds it amazing that it was done only a generation after Rome had seemingly been completely humiliated after being sacked by Charles V in 1527. Rome and the Church of Rome regained many of the territories which they had lost and became once more a great spiritual force.

This film in a thousand images documents the lushness and luxury of early Baroque. The Rome of the 17th century was both religious and sensual. The works of Titian, Rubens, and Bernini appeal to universal emotions. They became the acme of art. The essence of Baroque is the uniting of flesh and spirit, dogma and sensuality, obedience and freedom. This unity is evident in the great religious figures of that time: St. Ignatius, St. Theresa of Avila, and St. John of the Cross.

Lyon, chairman of the sponsoring group said.

Though the city of New Orleans has passed a bond issue which will produce funds for the erection of a beautiful new multi-million symphony hall to be ready for use in 1972, the orchestra could not wait to have a rehearsal "home" of its own.

A strong appeal to the Ford Foundation brought enough money to purchase and rehabilitate an old neighborhood movie theatre, the Ashton, scene of many films starring old time stars such as Tom Mix, Pearl White, and Fatty Arbuckle. The building had been out of use for many years when purchased by the orchestra. Contractors then installed new central heat and air conditioning, fluorescent lighting, new plumbing, and painted it inside and out. Before long, the structure, which is perfect acoustically, became the setting for Bach, Brahms, Beethoven, and Stravinsky. It will accommodate the 82-member orchestra and, when needed, a 200-voice chorus.

Mr. Carter Nice, a 30-year-old violinist from Jacksonville, Florida, is concertmaster and assistant conductor of the orchestra. He was appointed to his double position in 1967. He has also served in the same capacity with the Florida Symphony and was conductor of the Florida Symphony Youth Training Orchestra.

He left this position to join the faculty of the University of Oklahoma where he served as assistant professor of violin and Chairman of the string department.

During the closing weeks of the 1967-68 season, Nice helped organize a massive project of string instruction in New Orleans schools for children, ages 6 through 12. The project is still in operation, has grown, and is widely acclaimed.

Appearing with the New Orleans symphony here will be violinist Regis Pasquier, a member of the famed Paquier clan of France which has produced distinguished musicians for generations.

Lauded by such famous string players as Fournier, Stern, and Oistrakh, Pasquier made his debut in the United States with the Cleveland Symphony Orchestra in the 1967-68 season.

Sporting over-the-ear length hair and a certain flair of his own, Pasquier is, obviously, a product of his own generation. He is handsome in a way reminiscent of a character out of Mod Squad or the National Football League. He is particularly noted for his handling of the work of Tchaikovsky.

Pasquier's talents were realized early and he made his official debut at the age of 12 when he won the first prize for Violin at the Paris Conservatory. Since that time he has appeared frequently on radio and television. He made many appearances last season with the Pittsburgh Symphony and other leading orchestras, and recital engagements at many colleges and universities where the enthusiastic acclaim for his performances was overwhelming.

Having trouble? Panhellenic Council is offering free tutoring service to all Madison students. Available on three days' notice, tutors will be available for instruction in all undergraduate subjects for either a prolonged period or for one night before a test.

The program will continue until the beginning of examinations. Any student in need of this service should contact Sarah Tourgee at 433-5-55 or box 2683.

European Employment Opportunities

Temporary paying jobs are available in Europe to all students. These openings — many requiring only a will to work, with no previous experience or knowledge of a foreign language needed — offer ideal, ready-made opportunities for students to earn a few weeks or months in a country of their choice such as England, France, Germany, Switzerland or Spain.

Most jobs are in resorts, hotels, shops, stores, restaurants, offices, factories and hospitals and on farms and construction sites. Camp counseling, governess, teaching and sales positions are also available. Room and board either comes with the job or is arranged in advance, and is often in addition to wages ranging up to $500 a month for the highest paying jobs.

By earning their way, students are able to see Europe without the usual expenses while getting an individual, human insight into European life. With easing draft calls and the high rate of rejection by the Peace Corps, increasing numbers of students with a yen to travel and broaden their personal horizons may be well advised to consider such an independent adventure.

Happiness: Campus Radio 'On-The-Air'

The 1970 fall session sees the return of WMRA-FM, the radio voice of Madison College, for its second year of programming under the direction of a new station advisor, Mr. Gerry Haskins.

The staff of WMRA has begun sending out the sounds very successfully. Station Manager Chris Smith, along with the rest of the student staff, Jim Turney (Program Director), Bill Pollard (News Director), Grant House (Music Director), Mike Holmes (Head Announcer), Sherry Everson (Educational Director), and Lynne Atkinson (Office Manager) plan to keep WMRA on the air from 3 p.m. till 1 a.m. every week night and from 12 noon till 3 a.m. on weekend nights, with the help of the many WMRA deejays, of course. These time changes are the result of student interest in this later programming.

WMRA-FM programs to the needs of the Madison Community and depends upon YOU, the student, to express opinions and become involved in the campus station's activities. Feel free to send any comments or suggestions to WMRA, Box 58 Campus Mail, in care of Chris Smith.

Orchids to Coach Leotus Morrison and her fine field hockey squad which recently finished the regular season with a 10-0 mark. In topping Bridgewater for the second time this year, the Duchesses gave up only their third goal of the year. Bev Burnett's three goal spree was one of the year's best individual performances.

Janet Chavis of the second unit, which wound up with a 6-2 mark, tallied four times in the second unit's win over the Bridgewater No. 2 unit.

The frosh, also undefeated in their first season of play, were sparked by Debby Wright and Pat Kelley. Chris Ward and Jean Schoellis also served notice that they will be forces to be reckoned with in the next three years.

Coach Cleve Branscum's basketball team scrimmaged against Lynchburg last Saturday and came away a 106-85 winner in the unofficial game. Freshman Roger Cooper sparkled in the Dukes' first taste of competition with 33 points along with last year's leading scorer, George Toliver, and Bo Tutt.

A matter of concern to some spectators was the fact that Steve Misenheimer did not seem to show the ability to move as he did last year although he scored 24 points.

Misenheimer, however, is still not going at full speed after suffering a broken leg last year, but will undoubtedly come around as the opener nears.

The second of the winners of bowl bids was decided last Saturday when Stanford came from behind to nip Washington University for the coveted invitation to the Rose Bowl.

The Indians, behind their Mexican-American quarterback Jim Plunkett, have lost only to Purdue this season. Indian Sonny Sixkiller, a sophomore flinger, gave Stanford fits with his pin-point tosses in the first three quarters of the game.

Stanford's opponent for the Rose Bowl will probably be third-ranked Ohio State.

Speaking of Plunkett, if the Philadelphia Eagles want first crack at him, they cannot afford to win many more pro games. The team from the City of Brotherly Love finally got in the win column for the first time in two seasons last Sunday against Miami, a team which has blown hot and cold this year and is now definitely frigid.

After a few weeks of comparative quiet, Cassius Clay has reverted to form with his recent verbal fireworks about what he plans to do with "champion" Joe Frazier when they meet.

We suggest that the Louisville Lip get past the tough Argentinian Oscar Buonovena before he plans anything else. Though he might be one of the beautiful people in the opinions of some, about the only beautiful thing about him is his physique including a mouth which defies comparison. At least, however, he has departed from spouting his original "poetry." That, in itself, is a blessing.

Bridgewater's eleven threw a mighty scare into unbeaten Randolph-Macon last Saturday before bowing for the fifth time in eight games. If the Eagles had more talent to go along with hard-working Marshall Flora, their record could be just the reverse, or better.

The Eagles, however, do have the state's best small-college cross-country team. They handed the Dukes a resounding defeat in their last meet of the season by sweeping all five places in the scoring.

Word is that the Eagles will not be a power in basketball especially since Ron Cook dropped out of school.

Don't forget that the Dukes take on Shenandoah in a pre-season game at Harrisonburg fieldhouse next Saturday at 8 p.m. though the game is listed as a "scrimmage" on the schedule.

The contest will help prepare the Dukes for their Dec. 2 meeting with the Washington Mountaineers who were the fourth-ranked AAU five in the nation last year. The Mountaineers will tune up for the clash by meeting the U. of Maryland squad a few days prior to their visit here.

The Duke Booster club has sold $2,000 worth of advertising for this year's basketball programs which will be sold at the door for 25 cents.

GOALIE ALAN MAYER hits mud after blocking shot in Lynchburg game.

Booters Drop Final Two Games, End Season With 1-8-1 Record

Coach Bob Vanderwarker's soccer team dropped its final two games of the season to complete the season with a 1-8-1 mark, a record that is misleading since five of the eight defeats were by one goal.

The Dukes finished the year on the road dropping a 3-2 decision to Hampden-Sydney last Friday, and being blanked 4-0 by a strong Roanoke squad Monday in a game much closer than the score indicates.

Against H-S, the Dukes jumped off to a 2-0 lead on goals by Chico DiGuardo and Joe Coleman. DiGuardo's score, his sixth of the season, came on a pass from Mike Frye while Coleman's was as the result of a direct kick.

The home team scored once before the half ended on a tally by Flowers with Kohler getting the assist. Kohler kicked one in on a pass from Brooks in the third period. The winning goal came in the final period when Patterson took a pass from Hammer and got it past Goalie Alan Mayer who was named the most valuable player on the team following the season finale.

Against Roanoke, the Dukes fell behind, 2-0, then saw a goal by Rich Fulton disallowed because of an offside penalty and another lost because a Madison player touched the ball with his hand.

"I was pleased with the way we played against Roanoke which is a fine team, but I thought we were much better than Hampden-Sydney," said Coach Vanderwarker. "I was disappointed a little that our season record wasn't any better because the players, the fans who supported us all year, and the cheerleaders deserved something better. We're going to be a lot better next year because the experience we got this year will be valuable," he continued. "Defensive lapses cost us several games and were directly responsible for most of the goals we gave up in the last three."

Thus after winning their opener, the Dukes failed to put it all together again even though playing some fine soccer on occasions, especially against EMC and Lynchburg. "We learned a lot this season, nevertheless, and it will pay off next year," concluded the Duke pilot today as he prepared for a trip to talk to some prospects in Maryland, New Jersey, and New York. "And that I promise."

COACH CLEVE BRANSCUM looks pleased as he watches Duke basketball team work out. Though the regular season will not get underway until Dec. 2, the Purple and Gold will meet Shenandoah in a scrimmage game next Saturday and face the Washington Mountaineers Dec. 2.

Duchesses Unbeaten!

by Terri Brewster

The girl's field hockey team concluded an unbeaten season by winning their 11th and 12th consecutive games in the Blue Ridge Tournament at Hollins last Friday and Saturday.

The Duchesses defeated Roanoke, 2-0, with both goals going to Lydia Estes, and routed host Hollins, 7-1, as Juanita Etheridge and Bev Burnett combined for five goals. Nancy Taylor and Estes rounded out the Duke scoring with a goal apiece.

Coach Leotus Morrison's squad capped the season by having 10 of the 11 players on the squad named to the all-star teams which will represent the Blue Ridge Association at the Southeastern Tournament in Towson, Maryland, next week. Dr. Morrison was also named to coach the No. 1 unit.

Named to the first unit were Pat Morris, Jane Stull, Carolyn Stanley, Emily Harper, Dee McDonough, Estes, and Etheridge. Nancy Jose and Terry Disharoon were picked for the second team.

Four teams will be selected at the Southeast Tournament to represent the southeast in the Nationals to be held at Lancaster, Pa. over the Thanksgiving holidays.

Coach Morrison said today that it was very possible that some of her Madison players might be sent to the National event.

EMC Finishes Fall Sports Schedule

The Eastern Mennonite Royals finished their varsity fall sports schedule with both the cross country and soccer teams posting wins in their final games.

The harriers, coached by Roland G. Landes, chalked up a 7-1 record and placed third in the Little Eight championship race. Only state champion Bridgewater defeated the north siders this year.

The Royals' most consistent performers were Herb Zook, a freshman, and Lin Martin, a senior.

The soccer team, though not as successful as in previous years, managed to finish the season with a 4-6-1 mark including a 1-0 win over the Dukes. It was the first time in four years that the EMC booters finished under .500.

Coach Byron Shenk, in his first year at EMC, had trouble in getting the offense to jell. The Royals' defense had some fine days, however, despite a half dozen losses most of which were by narrow margins. The team ended its year with a 1-1 tie with powerful Lynchburg which defeated the Dukes the following day.

The Royals will begin their winter sports schedule when the basketball teams open Dec. 5 with Messiah College. The grapplers will swing into action against Lynchburg Dec. 16.

The girls' basketball team opens its seven game slate at home against Mary Baldwin Jan. 12.

The men's team will meet the Dukes once again in a home-and-home series. The Dukes will host the Royals Dec. 14 and travel crosstown Feb. 12.

Hockey Squads In Clean Sweep

Bev Burnett scored three goals to lead Madison's unbeaten girls field hockey team to its 10th straight win last Thursday when the Duchesses took Bridgewater for the second time this year, 4-1. The loss dropped Bridgewater's season mark to 3-6-2.

The Purple and Gold took the lead in the first half when Bev Burnett scored the first of her trio of goals and Juanita Etheridge added another. The Eaglettes got their only score in the first half when Ginny Snuggs tallied. Madison led at intermission, 2-1.

The JV squad was also successful as it blanked the Bridgewater JV's, 5-0, for its third success against two defeats and a tie.

The frosh made it a clean sweep for the day by romping to their sixth straight victory without a loss against Randolph-Macon, 6-0.

Citing overcrowded conditions in classrooms and dormitories, the Student Council last week unanimously endorsed the Admissions Committee's recent recommendation that the size of next year's entering class remain the same or be reduced in size.

Council members also stressed the need to raise academic standards and prevent cutting down the number of out-of-state students.

Virginia Tech

The university was the recipient of a $15,750 grant from Tennessee Eastman Co. of Kingsport, Tenn., and its parent firm, Eastman Kodak, last week.

The unrestricted grant was a sort of "thank you" from the company which has 16 Tech graduates at its Tennessee plant.

Tech students hit the Virginia Senate results right on the nose in a mock election prior to the election by naming, Byrd, Rawlings, and Garland in that order. The incumbent senator's margin, however, was only a scant 38 votes—not the large margin of the election day.

Bridgewater

Bridgewater students, in defiance of an administration order, wore peace armbands at the college's homecoming football game to show their concern about the war in South-east Asia.

The administration had refused the students' request to be allowed to pass out literature at the game on the grounds "that it would not be in tune with the spirit of homecoming."

Tomorrow will be the college's annual PARENTS DAY with a football game against Newport News Apprentice School as one of the features.

Open dorms will also be set up to provide for visits by the parents after the game.

The yearly event is directed by the administration and supported by the Parent's Committee to give all parents an opportunity to see the campus and some of its related functions.

Vacancies Filled By Freshmen Elections

Elections were held recently to fill two seats left open for freshmen representatives on the Honor Council and to fill a vacancy as freshman class parliamentarian.

Beth Clardy and Dottie Kirby were elected to the Honor Council and Janice Spangler won the parliamentarian position.

Miss Clardy and Miss Kirby both have had similar experience in high school. They hope to strengthen Honor Council while Miss Kirby plans to promote more unity within the freshman class.

Misses Hensley & Meeks Give Recital

Dr. Marion Perkins, professor of music at Madison College, will present a program of four-hand music with Diana Hensley and Susan Meeks Sunday evening, November 22 at 8 P.M. in Latimer-Shaeffer Auditorium in the Duke Fine Arts Building. Miss Hensley and Miss Meeks are both piano students of Dr. Perkins. Miss Hensley is a sophomore music student from Elkton with majors in piano and voice. Miss Meeks is a senior music student from Covington with majors in piano and clarinet. Both students are on the Dean's List at Madison College.

The program of original works for piano four-hands will include the Fantasy in F minor, Op. 103 by Schubert, Sonata, K.497 by Mozart, the Mother Goose Suite by Ravel and Five Hungarian Dances by Brahms. This is the first time a program of original four-hand music has been given at Madison College.

Chemists Attend Short Course In Md.

Dr. Liberty Casali and Dr. Frank Palocsay, both members of the Chemistry department, attended a two-day short course in Bonding and Quantum Mechanics at College Park, Maryland, last week.

Conducted by the American Association for the Advancement of Science, the short course was taught by Dr. George C. Pimental of the University of California. Dr. Pimental's research interests included infrared spectroscopy and molecular structure; chemical lasers; hydrogen bonding; and thermodynamic properties of hydrocarbons. He is co-author of seven books, and has served as editor of the CHEM Study Project. He is also a member of the Lunar and Planetary Missions Board, advisory to NASA.

A series of short courses is being held during the academic year 1970-71. Since the program is on an experimental basis this year the courses have been chosen to cover a range of needs and interests.
